appointed when it is known that there was so littie in the performance at the Wainut Street Theater to night to warmant the hope that she would ever be able to add to her faume or reputation by its repetition. The effort only gave additional proof that Miss Davenport's talents do not properly lead her in the direction of any effect requiring metaphysical thought or mental analysis flad there been a glimmer of the light of genius in her whole attempt at impersonation, there might have been hope; but her performance was commonplace, and very soon after her entrance upon the stoget became unfuteresting. The effort was an honest one. The house was small; there was not the slightest attempt to forestall or previouse public opinion. The result was that willing applause was soon checked for want of acting to call it forth, and there was a real feeling of disappointment at the lameness of intellectual force displayed in her last seene. Miss Davenport gained only credit for a praiseworthy ambition, which tempted her into a strange and therny field where the flowers of fame were few and faded. Tariff Bill-True Inwardness of the Chaplainship Trouble-Republican Caucus.
